Welcome

I'm John Williams and this is my LTEC 5420 home page. This is my third semester in the MSLT program on the Instructional Systems Design track. In the spring I took CECS 5300 (Learning and Cognition) and CECS 5030 (Foundations of Learning Technologies). In the summer I took CECS 5110 (Multimedia in Technology Applications) where created a multimedia portfolio and built my first site of the UNT class server space. I invite you to check it out here.

I've been using html to modify webpages for about 15 years or so, but this course will give me my first real stab at CSS. Yes, that means I've always hand coded every single attribute (very time consuming). I'm already enjoying the little bit that I've learned about CSS. I have no doubt that developing a stronger set of web authoring skills will serve me well throughout my career in learning technologies and higher education. I'm looking forward to another great semester at UNT.
